

Clement is a founding partner of TaylorCrabbe. He serves as the In- Country associate of Client Earth, an International non-for profit organization and balances as a married father of two. Clement has a love for teaching and is considered the principal brain behind the formation of Taylor Crabbe Initiative.

Clement is a qualified lawyer with strong legal research and analytic skills. He has a good concentration of law and development practice including public institutional and regulatory reforms, legal analysis, legal education, project management and litigation. He also has a background in media and news reporting.

After completing a degree in Business Administration and a Bachelor of Laws post-first degree at the University of Ghana, Clement was called to the Ghanaian bar in 2009. He pursued and was awarded a Master of Laws degree (LL.M.) in Global Constitutionalism and International Finance from The University of Michigan Law School, Ann Arbor, USA.

Clement works in commercial law, international finance, constitutional law, human rights, and natural resources law with specialty in forest and wildlife legislation. He was one of the five counsel-researchers engaged on the review of the 1992 Constitution of Ghana focusing on decentralisation, local government and national security. He also teaches commercial law and selected Natural Resources topics at the faculty of law of the Ghana Institute of Management and Public Administration.